

Anna Alvarez Boyd brings over 25 years of experience as a trusted senior leader.

She has diverse experience in government, corporate and the non-profit sectors where she led housing, mortgage finance and community development policy at a national level. Anna currently holds the position of Senior Associate Director at the Federal Reserve Board, where she is responsible for directing consumer and community development research and programs that inform and support Federal Reserve policymakers.

Anna also served as Vice President of Programs for the Congressional Hispanic Caucus Institute, a non-profit institute providing leadership development programs to emerging Latinx leaders. Ms. Alvarez Boyd also held the position of Director, Community and Multicultural Lending at Fannie Mae where she developed business opportunities in minority and underserved communities.

As Deputy Comptroller for Community Affairs at the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency she directed a nationwide team of community development professionals responsible for policy directly impacting the nation's largest banks. During her time at the OCC she founded the Hispanic Organization for Leadership and Advancement (HOLA) to support the recruitment and retention of Hispanic/Latino employees.

Anna is the founder of Executive Horizons LLC, a consulting and leadership coaching business. Her coaching starts with the belief that every individual is talented, creative, and whole. She supports clients to deeper self-discovery, through a unique, tailored approach for each person that includes skill building, reflective practices, and leadership development.

In response to the racial justice movement and the realities of the pandemic for students, Anna and her husband, Eric Boyd, founded a non-profit organization called FairWays to Leadership. The mission of FairWays to Leadership is to educate college and university students from underrepresented groups to use golf to access business opportunities to further their career advancement.

Anna is a native of San Francisco, California, and a graduate of San Francisco State University. She is also a graduate of Georgetown University's Transformational Leadership Coaching program and a member of the International Coaching Federation, ACC level certified coach. She enjoys poetry, dance, and art.
