Anna is a seasoned government executive with over 25 years of experience in community development and regulatory policy. Anna currently holds the position of Senior Associate Director in the division of Consumer and Community Affairs at the Federal Reserve Board, responsible for directing the Board's community development programs, consumer and community development research and identifying emerging issues that inform policy. Throughout her career Anna has maintained a focus on the professional development of Latinos. She has served as Vice President of Programs for the Congressional Hispanic Caucus Institute (CHCI), a non-profit sponsored by Hispanic members of Congress providing leadership development programs to young Latino leaders. Prior to CHCI, Ms. Alvarez Boyd held the position of Director, Community and Multicultural Lending at Fannie Mae where she developed business opportunities in minority communities. Anna also served as Deputy Comptroller for Community Affairs at the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency where she directed a nationwide team of community development professionals responsible for policy on community development topics. During her tenure with the OCC, Anna founded HOLA, Hispanic Organization for Leadership and Advancement, an employee-networking group that helped to increase the recruitment and retention of Hispanics. Anna is a certified executive leadership coach with a focus on women and emerging leaders and the co-founder of FairWays to Leadership, a non-profit organization providing leadership development to women and people of color through golf.
